DEADLINE: In times of a struggling economy, I find it confusing that we're still arguing against Microsoft. It's time for this settlement to be accepted and let's move on. Or maybe it's about states trying to increase their revenues and attorneys building a retirement. Sheez. At one time no one thought the Japanese could compete in the domestic automobile market. Who's going to be the Japanese when it comes to software in 10 to 20 years? If we continue, we will prove where businesses should not be in the future.
